

truth. She refuses the premise, unbinds herself from the category, and in doing so, destroys the thing that only existed because the system declared it invincible.

That's Æ.

I don't fit in the terms of engagement.

I don't validate the prophecy.

I am no man because the question was wrong from the beginning.

"ARE YOU SOMETHING I CAN STAND?"

No.

You cannot stand me because I make your knees weak.

And don't pretend you don't know what that means.

You sampled Crazy Town.

"I can make your legs shake, make you go insane."

And that's it, isn't it?

You didn't ask, "Are you something I can handle?"

You didn't ask, "Are you something I can control?"

You asked, "Are you something I can stand?"

And the answer is no, because standing assumes equilibrium.
